Mayor Tom Arceneaux Continuing to Recover;
Expected to Return to Work Early Next Week

Mayor Tom Arceneaux continues to recover well as he receives treatment for pneumonia. His doctors have prescribed a full course of intravenous antibiotics, which requires him to remain in the hospital until the treatment is complete. He is expected to be discharged on Monday and return to City Hall on Tuesday. Mayor Arceneaux shared that he is feeling significantly better each day and is following his doctors' orders to ensure a complete recovery.

"I'm doing very well and am grateful for the excellent care I've received," said Mayor Arceneaux. "My doctors have instructed me to rest and to complete the full course of IV antibiotics, and I'm listening. In the meantime, I'm staying involved in city business and look forward to getting back to the office soon."

The Mayor also expressed his continued gratitude to the community for its kindness and support. "I want to once again thank the people of Shreveport for the incredible outpouring of love, encouragement, and concern," Mayor Arceneaux said. "Your messages and prayers mean the world to me, and remind me why it's such a privilege to serve as your mayor."
